

Tennessee Game Days Distributed Flea Market

Overcrowding and overwhelming the HVAC have long been issues that Flea-Market-loving TGD attendees have endured. Enter the Distributed Flea Market!

Buyers:

Flea Market games for sale will be on the thin tables along the edges of the main ballroom all weekend. Anything under the tables is personal storage. Games will be clearly marked with price tags, and the seller will have their contact information clearly visible near their pile of games. They may even be playing at a nearby table. If the seller is out of pocket for a while, simply arrange another time to make your transaction. Be kind, be honest, be yourself.

Sellers:

First, read the Buyers paragraph.

We ask that you donate the greater of $5 or 10% of your profit to that event's charity effort. Please pay and return the TGD flea market placard to the volunteer staffing the library before you leave on your last day.

There are thin tables along the edges. At first, please don't spread out to more than about half of one table (some are larger, some are smaller). That way we can accommodate a lot of sellers. If we have fewer sellers by Friday night, feel free to expand your footprint. But if we end up with more people wanting to sell and not enough space, we may need you to trim it back at that time. Check your registration badge for potential early closing times of certain salons and plan accordingly.
